

I am alarmed at the fruits we are reaping from allowing large media consolidations to occur. I fear that we are rapidly moving away from a democracy for and by the people into a darker time of a government ruled by the whims of large corporations.

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the PUBLIC airwaves FREE OF CHARGE, and is OBLIGATED BY LAW to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more personal bias and less news; more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
